Good morning. Rory Kuykendall here for the Culinary Union.

Station Casinos' owners Frank and Lorenzo Fertitta recently donated $1.85 million to Donald Trump's re-election campaign.

Now Station Casinos is jumping on the bandwagon with other corporations hoping to find a sympathetic ear in courts that will prioritize corporate interests over the rights of workers.

Last month, Station Casinos filed a lawsuit over the constitutionality of National Labor Relations Board proceedings. It argues that the President of the United States should be able to fire NLRB Board Members and NLRB administrative law judges at the President's discretion and without cause, and that because such for-cause protections exist, the NLRB is an unconstitutional agency that cannot hold companies like Station accountable for their violations of labor law.

The ramifications of such extreme arguments by Station Casinos are unprecedented and dangerous. Station is currently subject to one of the largest labor law enforcement actions in history, and it is trying to get a free pass for its many alleged violations by attacking the legitimacy of the NLRB.

The National Labor Relations Board was founded February 1935, just 4 years after commercial gaming was legalized in Nevada.

Laws ensuring the right to organize on the job have been foundational to the success and integrity of the Nevada gaming industry. Corporate tactics aimed at weakening worker rights and protections must be rejected.

My name is Casiano Corpus. I have worked at Palace Station as a Utility Porter for 32 years.

I am a union committee leader inside Palace Station, which means I talk to my coworkers and organize them to fight for a union contract. The reason I became a union committee leader was so that I could provide a better life and future for my family. I want to have better pay, a pension, and better insurance.

Station Casinos does not want to give us what we are asking for. Every day I go to work, I am afraid because I don't know which day might be my last day.

We only want Station Casinos to respect the daily struggle of us employees, and to sit with us at the negotiating table and sign a union contract.

Thank you very much, and God bless.
