PUBLIC COMMENTS AND DISCUSSION: No comments.

Good morning. Ken Liu, with the Culinary Union.

Two Virgin Las Vegas executives, Cliff Atkinson and Chad Konrad, will go before the Gaming Control Board for their gaming license hearing today.<sup>1</sup> They are the only people on the agenda for the resort to try to take over casino operations from the Mohegan Sun.

However, it is not clear from the Board agenda whether state regulators have asked or intend to ask about who these individuals answer to, or how they raised the funds to buy the casino operating company. We believe these questions about funding and ultimate control deserve greater regulatory scrutiny to ensure public trust and confidence in Nevada's gaming regulatory system.

Specifically, we ask you to investigate Joseph S. Mancinelli, David D'Agostini, Lou Serafini Jr., Jay Wolf, Alex Kryz, and Armand Reale as to whether they exert significant influence over operations at Virgin Las Vegas and are therefore required to apply for a gaming license. They are key individuals associated with the multi-billion-dollar enterprise behind Virgin Las Vegas.

Mancinelli is the board chair of the LIUNA Pension Fund of Central and Eastern Canada and D'Agostini is the fund's CEO. This 11-billion-Canadian-dollar Laborers pension fund is the majority owner of Virgin Las Vegas. Do Atkinson and Konrad answer to Mancinelli and D'Agostini?

Do Atkinson and Konrad answer to Lou Serafini, Jr., the CEO of Fengate Asset Management, which invested in Virgin Las Vegas on behalf of the Laborers pension fund? Fengate manages other private funds up to 63% of beneficial ownership by non-U.S. persons.<sup>2</sup> Who are these foreign investors of Fengate? Do they influence Fengate's decision-making?

Do Atkinson and Konrad answer to Jay Wolf and Alex Kryz of Juniper Capital? Wolf and Kryz sit on the board of the corporate entity that owns Virgin Las Vegas, according to Juniper's website.<sup>3</sup> Juniper's third managing director, Armand Reale, is president of a company called Buena Vista Development Corp. in Canada.<sup>4</sup> That company was in the news last year when it was listed as the primary developer of a property for sale against regulations in Toronto's protected Greenbelt, according to a report by the Ontario Auditor-General. However, Reale claimed he was not the owner or developer of the land, and the actual owner turned out to be a Chinese investor living in China. The ultimate Chinese owner claimed the whole matter was a "misunderstanding".<sup>5</sup>

We should strive to avoid any misunderstandings about the sources of funds and issues of control at a Nevada casino resort like Virgin Las Vegas. The public deserves to know more about who is ultimately in charge at Virgin Las Vegas.

Good Morning. _____ with the Culinary Union.

Today Cliff Atkinson, Chad Konrad, and their company C & C 4455, LLC, will come before you for their application to take over the gaming license and the gaming operation at Virgin Las Vegas.

I want to say a few words about Nevada gaming regulators' complicated relationship with individual and institutional billionaires.

Nevada pays deference to billionaire institutions and individuals, which has sometimes resulted in regulatory failures or inactions.

- Station Casinos paid $38 million to settle a lawsuit by an unsuccessful casino applicant and the town in Missouri where the applicant planned to establish the casino.<sup>1</sup> Nevada regulators didn't take any action against the company, and the company sold its casinos in Missouri in 2000.<sup>23</sup>
- Nevada never took away the Tropicana's gaming license, even though its billionaire-owned parent company lost their gaming license in Atlantic City in 2008.<sup>45</sup>
- Nevada let Deutsche Bank own a 25% stake in Stations Casinos even though a subsidiary of the bank pled guilty to a felony charge related to global interest rate manipulation in 2015.<sup>67</sup>
- Nevada failed to bring a billionaire casino owner to account for sexual misconduct before the Wall Street Journal published a series of investigative reports in 2018.<sup>8</sup> After Massachusetts gaming regulators began to hold the billionaire and his company accountable in 2019,<sup>9</sup> Nevada finally took disciplinary action against the billionaire in late 2019.<sup>10</sup>

On the other hand, Nevada has successfully investigated and found suitable billionaires and leaders of multi-billion-dollar institutions. Many wealthy individual and large institutional investors in the state's gaming industry have subjected themselves to the state's rigorous licensing process and obtained a gaming license.

- Billionaire owners of casino resorts on the Strip have long held Nevada gaming licenses.<sup>1112'</sup>
- A top executive from one of the largest private equity firms applied for a gaming license and showed up for his licensing hearing when the firm bought one of the largest resorts on the Strip in 2022.<sup>13</sup> He was approved for a gaming license.
- Even Deutsche Bank in 2010 sent four top executives to be licensed as board members of the entity that owned a large resort on the Strip on the bank's behalf. Nevada was able to require the global bank to sign a letter agreement to promise not to influence these board members when it comes to gaming-related activities.<sup>14</sup>

Acta de la reunión 17

With the state's gold standard of gaming regulation, why would Nevada NOT require the owners of Virgin Las Vegas to be included in a review of the resort's own casino license application?

We believe Nevada gaming regulators should ask more, broader, and deeper questions of sources of funds and ultimate control at Virgin Las Vegas. We urge you ask Cliff Atkinson and Chad Konrad these questions today.
